Overview

In 2016, the New York State Committee for the Coordination of Police Services to Elderly Persons focused on developing and supporting training to improve the law enforcement response to elder abuse and raising awareness, among committee members and their constituents, of the resources available to elderly individuals.

The Committee met twice, on May 8 and December 15, 2016, at the offices of the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) in Albany. The agency's Office of Public Safety (OPS) provides staff support to the Committee.

New York State Executive Law 844-b outlines the duties of the Committee, which include the support and development of programs, training, prevention practices and technical support to law enforcement agencies and service providers to combat crimes against the elderly.

To fulfill these duties, the Committee updated basic training for new police officers with respect to crimes against the elderly; is working toward the development of a resource tool kit for stakeholders to investigate elder abuse; and continues to provide technical assistance through specific agency programs.

Committee Activities

Law Enforcement Training

Law Enforcement Toolkit

At its December 2016 meeting, the Committee agreed to develop an online tool kit, which would allow law enforcement professionals to access and utilize resources from all disciplines involved in the fight against, and prevention of, elder abuse.

The Committee and the Office of Public Safety staff will survey law enforcement to better understand which resources would benefit officers in the field and work together in 2017 to compile those resources for the tool kit. The toolkit will be disseminated to law enforcement shortly in early 2018.

Basic Course for Police Officers: Crimes Against the Elderly

New York State requires municipal police officer recruits to complete the Basic Course for Police Officers, developed and approved by the state's Municipal Police Training Council (MPTC). The Council, which has eight members appointed by the Governor, is responsible for ensuring the course remains current and relevant to the needs of village, town, city and county police agencies and their future officers. DCJS provides staff support to the Council.

At the direction of the Council, a comprehensive review of the Basic Course for Police Officers is being conducted by DCJS staff. As part of that review, DCJS staff evaluated the existing four-hour block of instruction that focused on crimes against the elderly and crime prevention, drawing on expertise of Committee members.

The review resulted in recommendations that were accepted by the Council at its meeting in December 2016, including: dividing the four-hour block into two, two-hour sections, one focused on crimes against the elderly and the other, on crime prevention; citing common crimes and identifying various schemes affecting the elderly; and detailing strategies for law enforcement agencies and warning signs of scams.

Program Support

Committee members have discussed the following programs and activities during their meetings. These initiatives are supported by the Committee and the discussions are designed to facilitate information-sharing among Committee members and others in attendance focused on elder justice.

New York State Judicial Committee on Elder Justice

The Judicial Committee on Elder Justice works with stakeholders across the state to promote consistent outcomes in domestic violence cases, as well as addressing elder justice issues. Additional subcommittees have been formed, including community outreach, education, interagency coordination, legislative initiatives, policy and procedure, and research data collection and technology.

A key focus of the Committee is training all court personnel on the aging process and how it impacts court procedures. Personnel are taught how to identify elder abuse and its risk factors, as well as cultural factors that can influence behavior in elder litigants. Judicial Committee members expressed interest in collaborating with Committee members and their stakeholders on future initiatives.

Enhanced Multi-Disciplinary Teams (eMDTs)

The New York State Office for the Aging, in collaboration with the state Office of Children and Family Services, currently supports two Enhanced Multidisciplinary Teams: one in Manhattan and the other in the Finger Lakes region. The teams bring together professionals from a variety of disciplines – adult protective services, finance, criminal justice, victim assistance, health care, religion and mental health – with the goal of improving cooperation and streamlining assistance for better outcomes for the elderly individuals.

This initiative targets frail adults who are at least 60 years old with a physical or cognitive impairment, or who experience social isolation. The Committee supported the mission of these teams by developing through training and implementation of forensic accounting and geriatric psychiatry programs. Implementing such programs will increase the knowledge base of the enhanced multidisciplinary teams and further assist the targeted elderly population.

The creation of the teams is the result of the State of New York receiving a federal grant called Elder Abuse Prevention Interventions grant initiatives in 2012. The grant is funded by the Administration on Aging and the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The teams have served more than 220 older adults since their inception. Each team has a coordinator to manage cases and provide further information to the rest of the team members. District attorneys' offices play an active role in each team and police departments and sheriffs' offices were asked to participate in the teams as well. Coordinators also notify law enforcement and other relevant individuals upon receiving a new case to determine if law enforcement was already aware of, or involved with, the case.

Future Activities of the Committee

The Committee and staff from the DCJS Office of Public Safety staff will continue to identify programs – in consultation with experts, service providers and representative organizations engaged in safeguarding the elderly – designed to assist law enforcement in the protection of elderly persons against crimes.

In addition, the Committee will continue to include representatives from other disciplines in future meetings to further encourage communication and information-sharing.

Committee members will also continue to collaborate to determine the most efficient ways to utilize the information provided at meetings to improve the quality of life of senior citizens in New York State.
