

The New York State Criminal History Record

Executive Law Article 35 establishes the New York State Division of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS) as the central repository for criminal history record information.

DCJS provides criminal history reports, or “rap sheets,” in response to both criminal and non-criminal inquiries. Access to criminal history data depends on the authority of the requesting party. Each report contains information that is on file at DCJS, but the amount of information released depends on who made the request, the reason for the request and the status of the record being requested.

For example, under New York State regulations (9 NYCRR §6050.1), an individual may obtain a copy of his or her criminal history record information maintained at DCJS. The individual may receive either:

- A copy of his or her complete criminal history report containing all information related to that individual;
- A copy of the record that does not contain information that has been sealed or suppressed (hidden) because, for example, the outcome of the criminal case(s) was favorable to the individual; or
- A "no record" response indicating that there is no criminal history on file with the agency.

The following example of a rap sheet provides explanations and details about the information included.

A rap sheet can include criminal (arrests, convictions, etc.) and civil (employment, license or permit) data and may contain the following sections:

- Attention - Important Information
- Identification Information
- Summary Information
- NYS Criminal History Information, including:
 - Arrest/Charge Information
 - Court Case Information
 - Incarceration Information
 - Parole Information
 - Probation Information
 - Certificate of Relief
 - Other Information
- Other History Related Information
- Job/License Information
- Wanted Information
- Missing Person Information

This section includes banners that, when present, alert the recipient to certain information that is on the rap sheet and to the restrictions on the dissemination of such information. The following is an example of some available banners:

Courts report dispositions electronically to DCJS. If a disposition has not been reported to DCJS, "No Disposition Reported" will appear instead of the court information.

The charges listed above are arraignment and disposition charges. They are different than arrest charges because they refer to charges that are prosecuted. Charges that are dismissed as a result of a plea agreement may be listed here following, "In Full Satisfaction of," and charges that are reduced from another charge may be listed here following, "Reduced from."

The sentence and date sentenced will be displayed at the end.

If an arrest and disposition resulted in an outcome favorable to the defendant, the rap sheet may look as follows:

Favorable outcomes are sealed pursuant to New York State Criminal Procedure Law (CPL) §§160.50, and 160.55, and conditionally sealed pursuant to CPL 160.58. This is displayed at the end of the court case that is sealed.

In all cases, except for marijuana charges adjourned in contemplation of dismissal pursuant to CPL 170.56, the fingerprint card supporting the arrest is destroyed when an action is "Sealed in Termination of a Criminal Action in Favor of the Accused CPL 160.50". If there are multiple court cases for a cycle, all cases must result in a seal in order for the entire cycle to be sealed and the fingerprints destroyed.

These sealed arrests and dispositions would not be included in the rap sheets, unless release of the information is authorized by law or an individual chooses to obtain a copy of his or her own criminal history record with those sealed arrests and dispositions included.

Certificate of Relief (from Civil Disabilities)

A Certificate of Relief from Civil Disabilities may be issued by the court or by DOCCS to an individual who has been convicted of any number of lesser offenses and up to one felony (Correction Law §§ 701-703).

The purpose of the Certificate of Relief is to relieve the individual of any forfeiture or disability, such as removing a bar to his or her employment that was automatically imposed upon his or her conviction for a single arrest, except for the right of a person to retain or to be eligible for public office.

The Certificate of Relief does not restrict any judicial, administrative, licensing or other body, board or authority from lawfully relying upon the conviction detailed in the certificate as the basis for exercising its discretionary power to suspend, revoke, refuse to issue or refuse to renew any licenses, permit, or other authority or privilege.

Granting a Certificate of Relief does not remove the underlying conviction from the offender's criminal record and does not result in the case being sealed.

Other History-Related Information

This refers to information about the individual who is the subject of the rap sheet that does not pertain to a specific cycle. Data under this heading may pertain to, but is not limited to, Certificates of Good Conduct.

A Certificate of Good Conduct may be issued by DOCCS to relieve an individual of any disability or bar to employment (Correction Law §§703-a, 703-b). It may be limited to one or more listed disabilities or bars, or may relieve the individual of all disabilities and bars. The individual must have demonstrated a minimum period of good conduct in the community of one year for a misdemeanor conviction, three years for a Class C, D or E felony conviction, and five years for a Class A or B felony conviction.

Granting of a Certificate of Good Conduct does not remove the underlying conviction. It does not prevent a prospective employer or licensing agency from lawfully deciding to refuse employment, or to refuse a license. However, the issuance of a Certificate creates a presumption of rehabilitation in connection to the offense or offenses it covers for license or employment purposes.
